

BONE PLATING 201

NOVEMBER 28 - 29, 2023

Translational Medicine Institute - Fort Collins, CO

Colorado State University Veterinary Continuing Education

You learned long ago that not all of your clients are willing/able to accept a referral to a specialist for fracture repair and you grew tired of amputating limbs (or worse). Along the way, you took a basic fracture management / plating course and you've saved your share of limbs (and lives) as you've become comfortable with treatment of many routine diaphyseal fractures ... but you've also come to realize that not all fractures are diaphyseal long bone fractures and now you're ready for the NEXT LEVEL. We knew you'd be back ... and we've got the perfect training course for you! In this specially-designed blended (online + hands-on) course, you will learn to address those challenges associated with some articular fractures, juxta-articular fractures and fractures of the pelvis. After this course, you'll return to your practice ready to tackle some of those not-so-routine fracture cases and your clients will be glad you got this training!
